CNET Officers Receive Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medals

PENSACOLA, Fla.- On June 28, 1999, in a ceremony at the Chief of Naval Education and Training Command, Chief Warrant Officer Four Carol L. Rowe and Lt.j.g. Dalyn E. Dunn were awarded the Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal.

Chief Warrant Officer Rowe received the award for meritorious service while serving as Naval Aviation Schools Command, Naval Leadership Training Curriculum LDO/CWO Facilitator, from February 1996 to February 1999. During her tenure, she acted as Course Material Manager, managing the budget for training aids, furniture, and furnishing classrooms, while supervising the successful implementation of The Basic Officer, LDO/CWO, Chief Petty Officer, and the E-6 & E-5 Continuum Courses. The award was Chief Rowe's fifth commendation.

Lt.j.g. Dunn received his award for meritorious service while serving as Maintenance Material Control Officer in Fighter Squadron Three One from January 1996 to January 1999. During that time, he lead his command through the incorporation of five major airframe modifications and new software for 10 Tomcat aircraft. In addition, his inspirational leadership was critical to the command achieving the highest possible grades on six major pre-deployment inspections, and his expert technical skills and guidance were instrumental to the command's success during 11 major detachments and two Western Pacific deployments. This was Lt.j.g. Dunn's third commendation.
